The Flat Tricoroll 55 S is an extraordinary product in every respect, which stands out from the mass of trout baits. The intense collaboration of the Illex Stream Master Team with Koichi Fujimatsu, the famous Jackall designer, has bore fruit. The latest improvements to the design were found in tests in Normandy and implemented in the series. The result is a sinking wobbler that quickly reaches the ground and works effortlessly in streams thanks to its laterally flattened body. The Flat Tricoroll shows a "Rolling Action" as soon as it is in the water. This works even when drifting downstream with a raised rod and relatively loose line. There is practically nothing to do. Just by the pressure and the movements of the flow when drifting, the wobbler flirts seductively. Just put a short jerk now and then to trick careful trouts. On the one hand, the special shape of the Flat Tricoroll provides stability in turbulent water, on the other hand, minimal rod movements are enough to make it flutter. Not for nothing the Japanese call him the "dancer". A hit not only on trout but also on perch and asp.
