The new Micro Atom spoons prove that size does not always matter and the details provide for outstanding features.

The strikingly curved waveform of the Micro Atom shows an unprecedented bait game when retrieving, which arouses the interest of small predatory fish. When slowly retrieving, the spoon runs with a wobbling motion through the water, so that the sides flash attractive. If you crank it up quickly, it starts spinning around its own axis, resembling the tail fin of a fish and sending out strong vibrations.

If that's not enough for a bite, the 9 different, very elaborate and UV-active coatings will convince the predators. The backs are in silver or gold-black depending on the color of the front.

The chemically sharpened, very fine hooks will definitely not let go of your catch.
